

In the first two questions, you'll be asked about the last philosophers in one of the two charts (on pages 2 & 3). In each chart, the last philosophers are named in boxes with arrows pointing in a downward direction.

1. Chart 1 is the Italian School chart. Its focus is the Italian School of PreSocratic philosophy. In the chart, who are the last four philosophers?

-
-
-
-

2. Chart 2 is the Ionian School chart. Its focus is the Ionian School of PreSocratic philosophy. In the chart, who are the last five philosophers?
(The Pythagoreans count as one philosopher: Philolaus.)

-
-
- The Pythagoreans (i.e. Philolaus)
-
-

3. In your answer to question #2, which are the only two Ionian School philosophers?

-
-

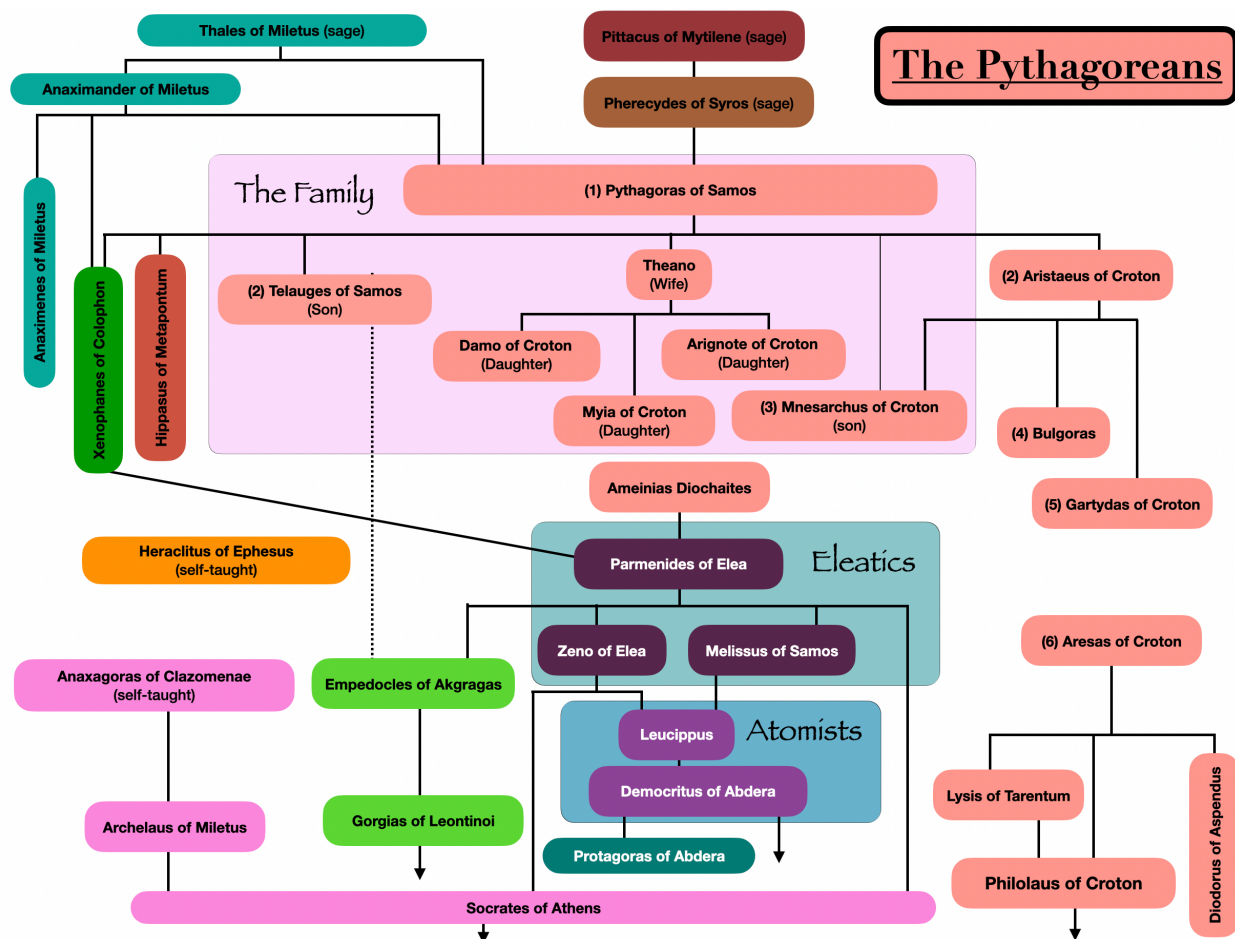

4. In your answer to question #2, which are the three Italian School philosophers?
(The Pythagoreans count as one philosopher: Philolaus.)

-
- The Pythagoreans (i.e. Philolaus)
-

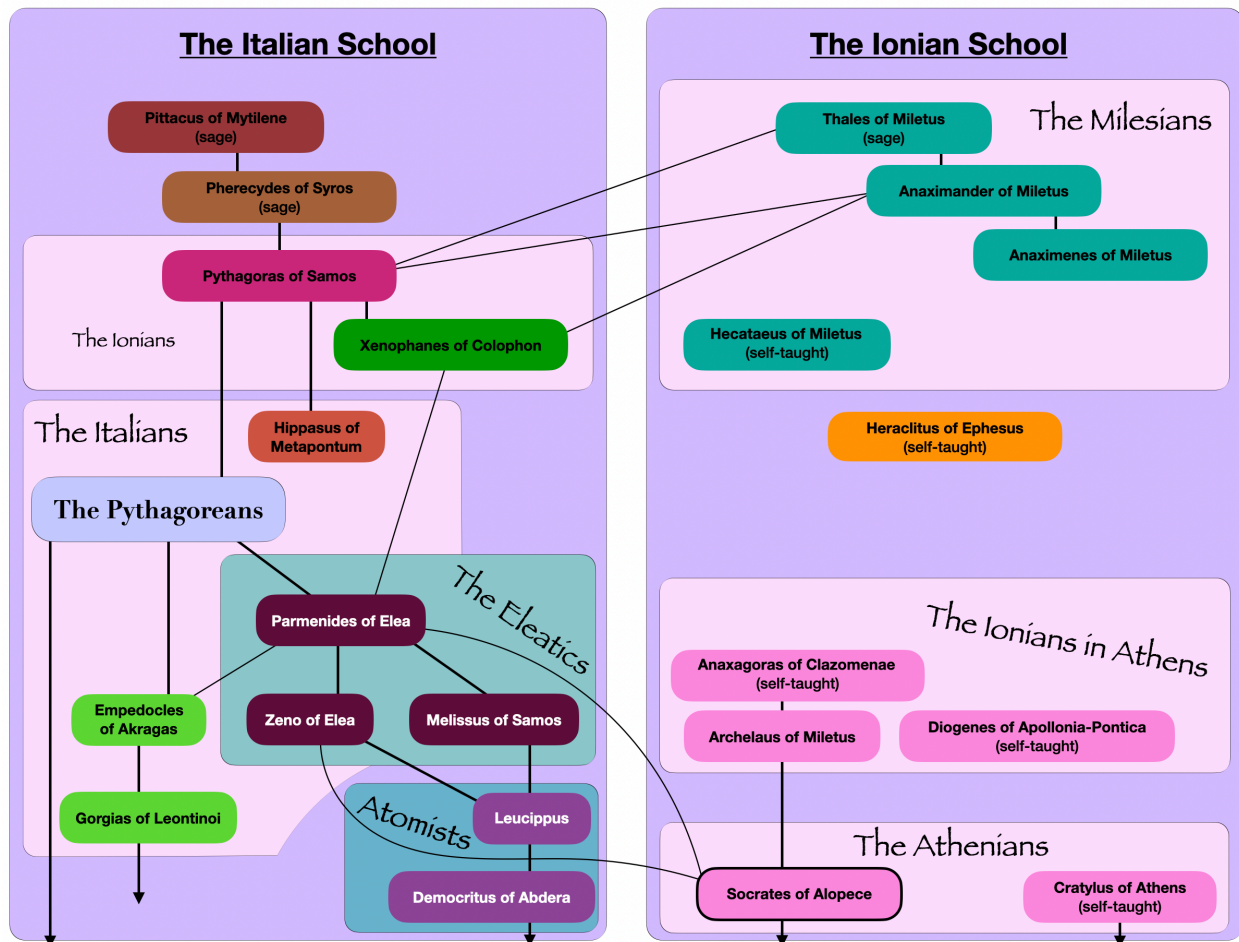

5. When philosophy's PreSocratic Era came to an end, only five philosophers flourished. Three of those philosophers were from the Italian School, and two of those philosophers were from the Ionian School. Based on how you answered the previous questions, who were those five philosophers?

-
-
-
-
-

• Chart 1: The Italian School (with some of the Ionian School)

- Chart 2: The Ionian School (with some of the Italian School)

During the time when Socrates had flourished as a philosopher, he was just one of five other philosophers who had flourished at the same time, and he was one of only two Ionian School philosophers who had flourished at that time.

