

- For Monday, November 16, 2020 you are going to be reading the next chapter of The Plague → Chapter 17.
- Continue filling out your dialectic log (example still in the powerpoint under resources “Plague Context and Assignments”) - the whole assignment will be due when we finish the book
- Chapter leader will work on their analysis and upload it to the link that is already on Archie
  - Chapter 17 → Darien
- In the copy of the book I have, that would be pages 139-164.
- If you’re using any other version, I’ll give you the first and last lines of each chapter:

Chapter 17:

Starts with → “And, as it so happens, what has yet to be recorded before coming to the culmination, during the period when the plague was gathering all its forces to fling them at the town and lay it waste, is the long, heartrendingly monotonous struggle put up by some obstinate people like Rambert to recover their lost happiness and to balk the plague of that part of themselves which they were ready to defend in the last ditch.”

Ends with → “Certainly, Rambert. Thanks.”
