- For Wednesday, November 18, 2020 you are going to be reading Part III of The Plague (Chapter 18).
- Continue filling out your dialectic log (example still in the powerpoint under resources "Plague Context and Assignments") - the whole assignment will be due when we finish the book
- Chapter leader will work on their analysis and upload it to the link that is already on Archie
    - Chapter 18 → Kevin

- In the copy of the book I have, that would be pages 167-185.
- If you're using any other version, I'll give you the first and last lines of each chapter:

Chapter 17:

Starts with → "Thus week by week the prisoners of the plague put up what fight they could."

Ends with → "For, characteristically, the sound that rose toward the terraces still bathed in the last glow of daylight, now that the noises of vehicles and motors, the sole voice of cities in ordinary times, had ceased, was but one vast rumor of low voices and incessant footfalls, the drumming of innumerable soles timed to the eerie whistling of the plague in the sultry air above, the sound of a huge concourse of people marking time, a never ending, stifling drone that, gradually swelling, filled the town from end to end, and evening after evening gave its truest, mournfulest expression to the blind endurance that had ousted love from all our hearts."
