1. a. What is your first-choice major or field of undergraduate study that you hope to pursue (Plan A)?

b. On a scale of 1 to 5 (1 = "I am not sure" and 5 = "there is no way I will ever change my mind"), how certain are you that you will end up studying the subject you listed as your Plan A?

1 2 3 4 5

2. What is your second-choice major or field of undergraduate study that you hope to pursue (Plan B)?

3. Thinking past your bachelor's degree and about pursuing advanced degrees, do you see yourself heading to graduate or professional school, and what do you hope to study at that level?

4. Thinking past your formal educational years, what do you currently see yourself doing career-wise?

5. A time of academic and personal growth, college should be transformative, allow you to explore new activities and topics, and provide you opportunities to delve deeply into your interests. Every college campus, big or small, all over the nation, will have more activities, organizations, and classes running than one person alone can partake in, yet each may still vary, to different degrees, in their campus atmosphere. That said, do you have a particular preference for being in an urban, suburban, or rural/natural setting, or are you flexible and open to a variety of new experiences and environments?

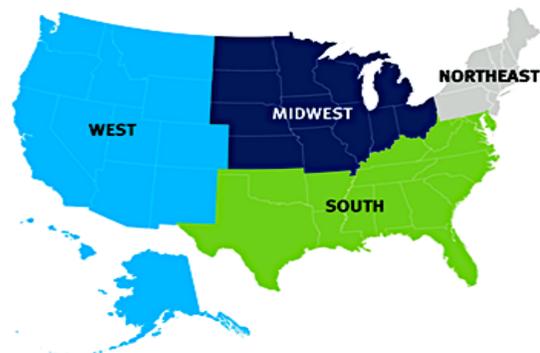

6. When selecting colleges to apply to, it is important to consider the factors that will help you stay focused on your goals, achieve academic success, engage in enriching and resume-building experiences, network effectively, attain strong recommendation letters for your future internship, job, and graduate-school applications, and more. Given what you know about your own personality and passions, do feel you will be more successful or happy in an institution of a particular size? Put "X"s in the boxes next to the campus sizes you feel match your needs.

Small Smaller Medium Larger Large

7. Campuses like to build diverse student bodies when it comes to their students' cultural, racial, ethnic, and socioeconomic backgrounds, academic, social, and extracurricular interests, viewpoints, experiences, personalities, and so much more. In terms of a campus' ideological leaning, are you hoping to navigate through an environment that is more conservative-leaning, more liberal-leaning, or has a large mixture of social and political stances represented?

8. You may be open to and excited about exploring new environments across the country or you may be particularly fond of experiencing certain regions more than others. Put "X"s in the boxes next to the US regions you would consider applying to and potentially attending college in.
