

The Creon begins his speech with a statement of who a good ruler is. Explain.

Creon sees Eteocles as a hero but Polyneices as a betrayer. Do you agree with him?

What was the dilemma the watchman was facing before he decided to go see Creon?

Why does Creon get angry when chorus say that the gods bury Polyneices?

What is the role of money, according to Creon?