TYPES of POEMS

Poems are a collection of words that express an emotion, idea, or story, sometimes with a specific sound or rhythm.

Rhymed Verse

has a pattern of rhyming words in the poem, also known as a rhyme scheme.

Haiku

a type of poetry from Japan that has 3 lines and 17 syllables. Does not rhyme. Uses sensory language and describes a scene or a moment.

Free Verse

often uses descriptive words and figurative language. It does not have a regular pattern of rhyme or rhythm a humorous poem that uses rhyming words. Has 5 lines. Has an AABBA rhyme scheme.

Limerick

Figurative Language creates a special effect or feeling or makes a point.

Onomatopoeia A word that imitates the sound of what it describes

Alliteration A sound device used to repeat the same consonant sound at the beginning of nearby words

Personification Gives human qualities or characteristics to an animal or object

Imagery Language that describes how something looks, sounds, feels, smells, or tastes

I bit into the juicy, sweet apple.

Elements of Poetry

Poetry can tell a story, describe a situation, or appeal to the senses.

Structure

- Line break → where each line of texts ends
- Stanza → a group of lines within a poem

Literary Devices

- Rhyming words → words with the same ending sounds at the end of lines or stanzas
- Rhythm → a pattern of stressed syllables that create a beat
- Imagery → words that create images that appeal to the senses
- Alliteration → the same sound or letter at the beginning of words or lines
- Onomatopoeia → a word that imitates the sound it represents, like buzz and THUD
- Repetition → lines or words that are repeated to stress importance

4 Poems

A set of 4 poems about a tree frog are shown below. Read each poem, then answer the questions below.

Poem 1 There once was a frog bright and green, The brightest that ever was seen. He leapt with such cheer, From leaf far to near, A flash in the rainforest sheen.	Poem 2 Red eyes in the night, Tiny toes cling to the leaves, Rain sings on the pond.
Poem 3 The tree frog shines in colors bold, A splash of green, a streak of gold. With spots of orange, eyes so red, He rests on branches overhead. He croaks a song both sharp and clear, A call that says, "I'm living here!" In rain and sun, through dark and light, His colors glow, a dazzling sight.	Poem 4 The tree frog waits on a wide green leaf, still as a shadow. Drops of rain slide past him, but he does not move. His eyes glow red, his toes curl tightly, ready for a leap. No rhymes, no rules— only the quiet strength of a tiny frog in the night.

Trees of Florida

TUESDAY

In Florida's sun where the breezes play,
Many tall trees grow every day.
The sabal palm, our state's proud tree,
Waves its fronds for all to see.

By rivers and swamps where the waters flow,
The cypress tree stands tall in a row.
Its roots form knees that rise from the ground,
Helping it breathe when water is found.

The live oak spreads with branches wide,
A shady home where birds can hide.
Its limbs wear moss, both silver and gray,
Welcoming creatures that stop on the way.

The mangroves cling to the ocean's side,
Their tangled roots are nature's pride.
They block the waves and protect the land,
A forest grown from the salty sand.

The pine trees grow with needles long,
Whispering winds make a forest song.
They drop their cones with seeds inside,
So baby trees can grow with pride.

From coasts to swamps, from fields to streams,
Florida's trees are nature's dreams.
They give us shade, clean air to share,
And remind us to handle Earth with care.

Florida Panther

WEDNESDAY

The Florida panther
moves like a shadow
through forests and swamps,
rare and quiet,
a hunter in the night.

Its coat is golden-brown,
its eyes are sharp,
its paws silent
on the pine-needled ground.

Long ago,
panthers roamed across the South—
but now only a few remain,
hidden in southern Florida,
protected by law,
watched by scientists.

They hunt deer and wild hogs,
sometimes rabbits,
keeping nature in balance,
a careful link
in the chain of life.

But danger surrounds them:
busy roads where cars race by,
shrinking forests
where houses grow,
diseases that make them weak.

People work to help:
wildlife crossings built under highways,
forests saved for their home,
tracking collars to study their paths.

The Florida panther
is more than an animal—
it is a symbol of wild Florida,
a reminder
that protecting nature today saves tomorrow.
